

PRESS RELEASE

FrontierZero Partners with Alvearium Associates to Strengthen SaaS Visibility and Compliance Resilience in the UK

Dubai, UAE — May 22nd, 2025

FrontierZero, the SaaS security platform helping companies secure their SaaS and AI environments, has announced a new strategic partnership with Alvearium Associates, a UK-based cybersecurity advisory firm known for its executive-level guidance, regulatory insight, and commitment to digital resilience.

Together, the two companies will launch joint go-to-market efforts across the United Kingdom, helping CISOs and IT leaders tackle fast-emerging SaaS risks, ranging from identity sprawl and shadow IT to unmonitored AI integrations. The partnership will include CISO roundtables, regional education initiatives, and co-developed resources focused on real-world enterprise challenges.

“Alvearium’s strategic work with UK CISOs and regulatory bodies makes them a natural partner,” said Karl McGowan, Co-founder of FrontierZero. “Their understanding of business risk and regulatory nuance aligns perfectly with what FrontierZero delivers—real visibility, actionable insight, and practical control over the SaaS and AI stack.”

This collaboration reflects a growing need for visibility-first security in UK enterprise environments. With compliance expectations rising—from NIS2 to ISO 27001—and software sprawl accelerating, business leaders are demanding solutions that provide both protection and operational clarity.

About Alvearium Associates

Alvearium Associates is a trusted cybersecurity advisory firm that delivers comprehensive strategic guidance across the full spectrum of security challenges. From incident response and breach investigations to building award-winning security programmes from the ground up, Alvearium brings deep expertise to organisations navigating today's complex threat landscape. With extensive experience supporting C-suite executives and boards across finance, healthcare, government, and critical infrastructure sectors, the firm specialises in aligning security investments with business outcomes whilst ensuring regulatory compliance and operational resilience.

Named after the Latin word for beehive, Alvearium embodies the principle of collaborative excellence—where every stakeholder works together towards the greater good of organisational security. This purpose-driven approach underpins everything from hands-on CISO counsel to board-level strategic planning, enabling clients to transform complexity into confidence. By aligning exclusively with causes and clients they believe in, Alvearium's risk-based methodology ensures that security becomes an enabler of business success rather than merely a defensive necessity.

Why FrontierZero?

As organizations expand their use of SaaS and AI tools, the complexity of managing access, identities, and integrations grows exponentially. Every new app, account, and connection increases the chances of something slipping through the cracks—whether it's a forgotten admin login, a bot with excessive permissions, or an unapproved AI tool connecting to sensitive data.

FrontierZero was built to solve that problem.

FrontierZero gives organizations complete visibility into every identity, app, and integration across their SaaS environment. Unlike traditional security tools, which rely on snapshots or static rules, FrontierZero continuously monitors for real-time changes, so when something breaks, drifts, or looks suspicious, it's caught fast.

Here's what makes us different:

- Clear visibility into every user and account
FrontierZero gives you a live map of who has access to what across your SaaS tools. Whether it's an employee, contractor, AI tool, or forgotten account, we show you what's active, what's risky, and what's no longer needed.
- Smart alerts that focus your team's time
We highlight the issues that actually matter—like missing MFA, unusual logins, or tools with too much access—so your security team isn't drowning in noise and knows exactly where to act first.
- Faster compliance and less wasted spend
FrontierZero helps you prepare for audits, avoid policy mistakes, and reduce software waste by spotting unused accounts and licenses—often saving companies up to 40% on SaaS costs.

Whether you're trying to stay ahead of attackers, meet regulatory demands, or clean up decades of SaaS sprawl, FrontierZero gives you the clarity and control you need to move forward confidently.
